ch thousand foes may round us crowd, i rail and quibble long and loud; vent on us their greatest carse, we can still untroubled sit, proudly laugh at all of it. Which, floating empty, bursts in air,

And settre calmly round us piays, For satire ne'er could make us care. st gentle Bard, (and who lee is, etold the firm of Quiz) o kindly calls himself our brother five wished to have another, en within can write and copy too, such as many a larger crew. lest for null viss we'd be blam'd, d whisper, that we're much asham'd, to steal our name and title too, he shall know that Quiz & Co. Can give them all a cud to chew, out is can chew as well as cows, in hassa love on thorns to browse not Messicurs Editors, we're very glad, this truly modest quizzing lad, this took the world in plainest term, that he's no member of our firm. For though we've worn our goose quill low,

And ink and paper used beside, none shall say that Quiz & Co. Have scribbled what we now deride, However great a Bard's pretence, We always like to read sound sense. And oh! when "Raymond" writes again, (We hope we do not speak too plain,) We always suit whate'er we say, To meet a rader's want of wit, hat he might lose no part of it. could write of southern chines. is the fame of the doggred rhymes, a recrused two weeks ago, should at least some pity shew; give us but one verse or two, ione will drag his poem through. hard indeed for us to say, at merit in his verses lay, this we know, and this we tell, Our weary eyelids, closing, fell, Refore we'd travelled I way o'er,

And if you'd been a stander by You might have heard us loudly snore, As if to rend the azure sky. When "P. P. P." shall write agen, We hope 'twill be of other men, Than those upon a gallows strung, For such his vagrant muce has lung And you have proved a week ago, That what he said was really so.

But there's a Best, to whose bright plume, We fain with greatest homage bow, And would be but that pen resume, would smooth his brother noct's brow. And we will hope to hear from thee, Thou star of Eran, signing "D." Yet ero we bid the Post adien.

The entrounding scenery is truly sublime; the rrey rooks forming an amphitheatre, rise like a tall hearly an hundred feet perpendicular, over ich the birch it ies reclining, weave a beautiful hade by uniting their broad spreading branches. However pleasant this shade may be, in afford g a cool retreat from the meridian sun, as it ocsions a perpetual gloom, it is apt to inspire the ontemplative mind with a tender melancholy.

Internally, this little cell is famished with a table, a mock library, a bed, and two hole neativ covered with a vellow species of hat. In this sequestered spot the Duke spends useful, and consequently happy hours, in ration; and correcting plans for the future imcoment of his estates .-

In this lone cave, in garments lowly, Alike a fee to noisy fully, And browshent gloomy metanchely,

This rock my shield, when storms are blowing.
The limpid streamlet yonder flowing,
Supplying drink, the earth bestowing
My simple food.
But few enjoy the calm I know in
This desart wood.

Content and comfort bless me more in This grot, than e'en I felt before in A palace, and with thoughts still soaring 10 God on high,
Each night and morn with voice imploring,

This wish I sigh-" Let me, O Lord, from life retire Unknown each guilty worldly fire, Remorseless throb, or loose desire; And when I die, Let me in this belief expire, To God I fly."

Stranger, if full of youth and riot, Stranger, it into ryouth and riot, And yet no grief has marr'd thy quiet, Thou haply, throw'st a scornful eye at The Hermit's prayer. But if thou hast a cause to sigh at Thy fault or care;

If thou hast known false love's vexation. Or hast been exil'd from thy nation, Or guilt affrights thy contemplation, And makes thee pine, Oh! how must thou lament thy station, And envy mine!

THOUGHTS ON HAPPINESS.

What is happiness? Where is it to be found? In what does it consist? Though all men are in the pursuit, few attain to it; and yet fewer are able to answer these inquiries. Happiness is no peculiar to any country, time, place, task, condi-tion, circumstance or employment; but is to be found in the mall; and, through the importial and found in the mail; and, through the importal and beautiful beneficence of the Creator, about equally dispersed and imparted to at the inhabitants of the globe. Happiness is not to be found in the enjoyment of abundance of good things; nor the gratification of the senses. The eye is chapted and we are not happy. The ear is charmed, and happiness is far from us. The faculties of taste. methog and techng are gratified with hazurious or inds, tragrance and softness, and something is sit wanting to complete our enjoymen. Contentment, instead of being the foundation of happiness and evidence of its presence, is only evidence of or capacity for enjoying it. Man is an aspering, improving, hoping, inquisitive, active, and in no smooth degree, a restless being. Hos greatest and a set natural enjoyments are scated in the pursuit or good, and in the hope of better. He part of the deed, must be crowned with some success, token the hopes buoyant; but the felicity most congenial with his nature, is rather in the pursuit than a

The sterility of one's country, the difficulty of procuring the necessaries of life, lowness of rack or occupation, are no obstacles to happiness. Cus-tom and habit conquer and reconcile every thing Habit makes the difference between necessaries Habit makes the difference between necessaries and luxuries. The dainty visueds of the rich are not more grateful to his palate than lentils and muscles to that of a poor man. The thoughts and contemplations of the poor man and private cite. Sen are as pleasing to him, is those of the most elevated to a grander of the parth, and the social affections are as consider with distribution or as a fifteen are as consider with distribution or as affections are as consoling and delightful to one, a-tic the other thappiness is to be and only at hom-lin win we look for her abroad, among strangers, and things exterior to our own minds—The only and things exertor to our own minds—The only sure and established throne of happiness is the mind; and it is there alone we must prepare our-selves for her reign, would we hope to becom-her subjects. Look then into your own mind. What do you find there? A barren solday waste, cheerless and incultivated, filled with thorus and thistles and briars, with notions to delicht, no. "Without adverting to several expressions in the "Stanzas," betraying an unnecessary degree of warmin, and an assumption insheeomong—or to the impropriety of mingling the "joys of eternity and "heavenly prospects of immortal life" with heathen mythology, "rhyming nonsense." and "ding dong chimes," I enquire how the sout, "when far removed from earth" can "bask in biss earth never gave before."

When any one was speaking ill of another in the presence of Peier the Great, he affirst listened attentively, and then interrupted him: "Is there not," said he, as fair side also to the character of the person of whom you are speaking? Courted the total about him."

The famous Boerhave was not easily moved by detraction. He used to say, "the sparks of calumny will be presently extinct of themselves, unless you blow them." It was a good remark of another, that the malice of ill tongues, cast upon a good man, is only like a mouthful of s soke blown upon a diamond, which, though it clouds its beauty for the present, is easily rubbed off, and the lustre of the gem restored.

It was a good was a good was a good man, is only like a mouthful of s soke blown upon a diamond, which, though it clouds its beauty for the present, is easily rubbed off, and the lustre of the gem restored.

OCTTBOUTENESS.

A GOURMAND.

I never knew a man who relished good eating more than IF. Johnson did. When at take, he was totally absorbed in the business of the moment; his books seemed rivetted to his plate; no and the times when in very high company, in one word, or even pay the least attention to what was said by others, till he had sat-field his appetite—which was so fierce, and indulged with such itte-which was so heree, and indulged with such retensionss, that wide in the act of rating the vens of his forehead swelled, and generally a strong perspiration was visible! To those whose sensations were delicate, this could not but be disjusting; and it was doubtless tout very antable to the character of a photosopher, who should be distinguished by self-command. But it must be distinguished by tell-command. But it must be owned, that Johnson, though he could be rigidly adjustments, was not a temperate man, either in cating or drinking; he could refrain, but he could not use moderation. He told me that be lead fast ed two days without inconvenience, and that he had never been hungry but once. They who be held with wonder how much he are upon all need some when his dinner was to his taste, could it easily conceive what he must have meant by home ger; and not only was he remarkable for the ex-traordinary quantity which he ate, but he was, or affected to be a man of very nice discernment in the science of cookery. He used to descant en-tically on the dishes which had been at table where he had dired or supped, and to recollect very montely what he had liked. When mysted to direction which an intimate friend, he was not pleased it something better than a plain direct was not prepared for him. I have heard him say on such an occasion, "This was a good dinner enough, to be sure, but it was not a dinner to ask a man to "—On the other hand he was wont to express with great give of satisfaction when he had been entertained quite to his mind. One day, when he

The actions of great men are viewed thro' so take a medium, that they seldom receive their just proportion either of raise or censule, till a long succession of events has removed the influence of prejudice. A long train of fawring fatterer , or envious rivals, like the different extremes of a telescope, always exhibit them either as dwarfs or grants, and when events happen, in which the interests of nations are involved, the public are too eagerabout the consequences, impartially to examine the springs in forming their sen iments of the persons concerned in effecting them; but just as the complexion of the time direct, the wildfire of appliause or represent is let off at the authors, in one undisting a shing b aze.

Why should it be thought less ho-norable for a man to fight valuantly in his own quarrels, than to fight in the quarrels of his Prince! And if quarreling and fighting between two officers, is shameful and wicked, what shall be avail of the searce of Process."

said of the wars of Princes?

"Of my antagonist, your majesty has said,
Capt, W. who is an old soider, thanks of settling every think by sword and pistoh." What better could reasonably have been expected from an
'old soldier,' who has been trained to blood!
And has he not the example of all the Princes of Europe to counterbalance him in settling his dis-putes with weapons of death? Or is it more ho iorable to murder men with cannon and muskets han with sword and pistol? Or is it Jess unjust, of less horrid, for sovereigns to call forth armies of innocent men and cause them to murder one another, to settle some t ivolous dispute, than for two deer, to settle some t trains dispute, dually frivo-lous, by fighting their own battle?

"Your majesty expresses a bigh esteem for those officers who expose themselves courageous. ly to the enemy, and who, on all occasions, show the enemy, and who, in an determined in attack, as well as defence. Of these you say the ind flerence with which they face death is honorable to themselves, and useful to their country. I was once of the same opinion, but reflection has convinced me that these are * false ideas.

For the wars of Princes are as needless as the combats of duellists. Besides, always on one part combats of duellists. Besides, always of one part, if not both, a war is positively onjust and four-derous; and I cannot timk that it ought to be decemed either 'honourable to themselves' or useful to their country,' for men with 'ndifference to face death,' in unjusty attempting to destroy their brethrin. 'To re are min,' says your majesty, 'who are witneg to sacrifice every thing to a spart of revenge and insteed.'
"This was meant of dueling; but is it not in fact more applicable to warring princes." Duellists indeed sometimes sacrifice their own tives, and the happiness of relations and the eds. But in their combats there is no harring or acking of towas—happiness of relations and thereby. But in their ownibats there is no harming or acking of townstand minder of women and children, nor of the sick and the aged—no ravaging of provinces—no public and inhuman centralizate t victories, and set dominore than two lives an allocal in one quarter. How trying then the saryfices in a war between two durings, convey divide what is, nache in 8. what is made in two duellests, compared with wal between two princes! "Yet of revengeful duellists, your majesty has been pleased to sa, —I despite them. —Perhaps, sire, they are as marketal it d to your pity, as your ontempt-to compassion for their misfortune it having been trained up in the principles of revenge and murder, in the service and by the example o the r princes

Soldiers and gladiators may stand on equal ground as to guilt; duelists may be worse than either at them? but can they worse than those rulers who wantonly caus soldiers and gladiators to shed each other's blood and who exert their influence to render fighting a glorious profession? Your majesty has denounced duelling as a 'harba ous custom, worthy of the age of Tamerlane and Bajazet.' I admit, sire, that duelling is a berbarous custom; but I think it cor responds less with the age of Tamerlane than does the public wars of governments. At a general meeting of the freeholders &c. of Norfolk County, England, (one of the most important agricultural counties of the kingdom.) Cobbett made his appear ance at the hustings, addressed the meeting at length, and succeeded in carrying his resolutions, almost by acclamation, in opposition to others brought forward and warmly orged by the principal men of the county, such as Mr. Coke, and proprietors of from 10 to 60,000t. seerling a year. Encouraged by this victory, the veteran jobber in patriotism presented himself at a similar meeting in Herefordshire, but he was there expected and encountered by some of his own writings, in which he calls the farmers "dolts," "knaves," " fat-faced rascals, &c." These arguments of a past day overthew all his cloquence at the time being, and he was almost scouted from the bustings, together with his propositions.

Bankruptcy in England .- We copy the following paragraph from the London Farmer's Journal of the 20th of January last. It exhibits a state of things arising either from misfortune or fraud, which might be received with incredulity, if the information had been derived from any other source.

"It appears from a report made in the House of Commons in May last, that fif teen thousand two hundred and forty-nine persons had been discharged from the In solvent Debtor's Court under the present act, whose debts a nounted to 11,000,000/.: and the whole proceeds paid into Court was only 60,064', making a dividend of about five farthings in the pound!"

There is an orange tree, still living and vigorous, in the orangery at Versailles, which is well ascertained to be four hundred years old. It is designated the Bourbon, having belonged to the celebrated Constable of that name in the beginning of the 16th century, and been confiscated to the crown in 1522, at which time it was 100 years old. A crown is placed on its CAISSE, with this inscription printed below, 'Seme en 1421.

Public attention at Stockholm is at present occupied by some very extraordinary cures of obstinate syphilitic disorders, hich have been effected by a Sudermanian; peasant of the name of Anderson, who uses fumigation for the purpose. The president of the College of Health, and several other physicians of Stockholm, have closely observed this curative process. Anderson has been liberally rewarded; and there can be no doubt that the details of the new method will be published in the Transac tions of the Swedish Medical Society.

FROM NAVANA.-By the schooner Louisa, arrived at Charleston on the 13th inst in five days from Havanna, advices have been received at the Courier Office, which state that great activity and bustle prevailed there, preparatory to an appre hended attack from the Bettish naval forces in the hended attack from the Braish havai infects in the Wes Indies. FROM THE AFRICAN COAST. Shorta Leade papers have been received at Boston to the 20th October. From their tanients it as pears that the Slave Trade Was still actively pursued by French, Span- ture, as containing provisions subversive of sh, and Portnenese vessels on the African coast, notwith-tanding the exertions of the as violating the conscientious scruples of American and British cruisers to prevent it. In the Royal Gazette there is a tabuar return of the slave vessels boarded by stain from bearing arms, or from paying the British sloop of war Driver, Captain Woohidge, from July 14 to September 19, of the community, have ample cause to be 1822. These vessels were twelve in number; of which seven belonged to Bahia, three to France, one to Havana, and one to Prince's Island. They had on board 5791 slaves; and the one belonging to Havana of only 90 tons burthen, had 217 male slaves on board! Six of the Bahia vessels had Royal Portuguese Passports, authorising them to take slaves from Mo lembe and Cabenda, to the southward of the line; but they were boarded at Waydali and Porto Novo, to the northward of the equator, with their slaves on shore preparing for embarkation, platforms down, water casks fall, and every thing ready for sailing with the victims of their criminal cupidity. Another of them was ketch Le Furnit, a tender of Le Phenix from Nautz. and has been employed in collecting slaves at the different slave ports on the coast for a company of slave dealers at Havre and Nantz. According to existing trea ties, the British cruisers are not authorized to present the trade to the southward of the equator; and these vessels, baving taben in their slaves there, escaped. The Driver, however, captured a Fortuguese brig and a Spanish schooner, having 867 wes on board, which have been condemned, and the slaves liberated.

Mines of Lake Superior .- In addition | will take this, safely I hope. We have but | they have been vesterday and to-day, but just come to, and have taken a round thro' the harbor, to the utter astonishment of the natives, who have never seen such an article in these seas as our Steam Gull. They took her, on entering the harbour this morning, for a vessel on fire. We came in for coal. The first division of schooners is at silver ore of a very productive quali- already beating out of the harbor. We shall be off again to morrow, with the remainder of the squadron; all wide awake, ondon, which yielded seventy-five in the happy, full of spirits and expectation, and only want an opportunity to show our prowess. The Sea Gull answers admirably, and weathered a blow in the Gulf Stream in great style. The only fault that can be found with her is, that owing to a fear that she would be rather crank, she has not sail enough and will not keep way with the fleet. without steam, unless in calms. It is a gallant sight to see her in light weather, playing round without a rag of sail. W have been literally hemmed in with boats since our arrival, as it is a rare sight to see a 'craft' go, the wind to the contrary notwithstanding."

> SPAIN.-The following is extracted from a letter written by an American gentleman at Cadiz to his friend in New York, dated Feb. 12, 1823.

> "Our political situation will not allow other feelings but those that must always precede the certainty of an approaching eventful crisis. The French government have decided on war-they will move forward an army of 100,000 men to the Ebro line, commanded by Sucher, &c. All this would be nothing, if the Spaniards were united -but there is every thing but union.

> "It is generally affirmed, that the Cortes have determined in a secret session, to remove the seat of government to the Andalusias. This may be the case, but I see an impracticability in the execution. An attempt to carry this measure into effect would doubtless be followed by disturbances in Madrid, which would ultimately lead to the entire destruction of the country.

> "The Malcontents under the orders of Bessieres, proclaim the Constitution with Chambers, (the present French system of government.) This they pretend to say is the Government the Holy Alliance mean to establish in this country : but I doubt much whether, if they succeed, they would treat the Peninsula with so much lenity.

> "So far, however, all is uncertainare desirous to know what part Great Britain will be pursuaded to take in the contest. The speech of the King of England to the Parliament will probably g ve an insight into her intentions."

Evening Most.

PHILADELPHIA.

Saturday, March 29, 1823.

We are requested to state, that the TREE ALOE, a rare and beautiful exotic production, is now in flower, at the Moyamensing Botanic Gar den in Prime street, (Love Lane) between Eighth and Eleventh streets, where persons desirous o seeing this natural curiosity will have every attention shewn them by the proprietor.

We are happy to learn, says the Franklin Gazette, that CANVAS WHITE, Esq late engineer to the N. York Western Canal, has recovered from a dangerous illness, which has delayed the commencement of the Union Canal of Pennsylvania .-We flatter ourselves, from the acknowledged ta lents and industry of this gentleman, that the important work confided to his care will be brough to a speedy and successful conclusion.

Pennsylvania Legislature,

Extract of a Laste dated HARRISHURG, March 26. Mr. Wurts presented a memorial from the Society of Friends, in the State of Pennsylvania, remonstrating against the the constitutional rights of the citizen, and those who believe it to be their duty to aban equivalent in lieu thereof. This clasalarmed at the steps which are taken from time to time, even while the land reposes in perfect peace, to create what is called an efficient militia system. The protection guaranteed by the constitution to the rights of conscience, are appealed to in vain: those who now hold the rod of power, forget that it was to enjoy those rights without restraint, that William Penn, and his followers, first sought these shores and opened the way to the vast variety of relig ous communities that are now found in Pennsylvania. Now that the tide of power has changed, there seems to be something unkind and ungenerous, in visiting upon the Society of Friends, the descendants of the first proprietors of the soil, the same hand of oppression, which induced them to abandon their native country. There is a want of sound policy in it too: for in time it will drive this valuable, wealthy and exemplary class of our citizens to seek peace and protection in other countries, whose institutions are more congenial with their religious faith.

Mr. Wurts also presented 14 petitions praying Legislative aid to complete the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal, and improve the navigation of the river Susque-ally occupied in disposing of the business on their respective files. A great number of bills have therefore been transmitted from one to the other; but most of them are of a private or local nature, not calculated to excite public interest. The Catholic bill has not yet been signed or returned by the governor.

The house of Representatives of the State of Pennsylvania have refused, 61 to 37, to re-consider the general bank bill.

The act for re-chartering the Philadelphia Bank for fifteen years, has passed the senate without amendment, and therefore only requires the governor's signature to become a law .- Agreeable to the provisions of the bill, the bank is to subscribe 100,000 dollars to the stock of the Delaware and Chesapeake Canal Company.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

The new Penitentiary .- The outer walls of this immense structure will enclose eleven acres of ground. In front will be a building containing rooms for sick convicts, and for the accommodation of officers of the institution, together with apartments for cooking and doing the other necessary work of the establishment. The interior, intended for the abode of the prisoners, will be kept entirely private. From a small circular building in the centre, five covered ways will diverge, on each side of which will be cells, amounting in all, to nearly three hundred. Each cell is intended for the abode of one prisoner only and will have a small yard in the rear. One of the Keep ers by taking post in the centre building, can command a view of all the passages. For further security sentry boxes will be placed on the walls, and a couple of men will there keep goard, thus overlooking the whole establishment.

The Extra Magellanic Premium has been awarded by the American Philosophical Society to Dr. James S. Ewing, for his Lever Hydrant.

The convicts, who lately attempted to break the prison in this city, have been tried for a conspiracy in the Mayor's Court, now sitting, and received sentences, additional to those upon which they were before held.

A young man was committed to prison on Monday morning last, having been to tected in attempting to set fire to the Panorama in Eleventh street, last week-he was committed on the evidence of the watchman.

A fire broke out in the store of Mr Bennet, in Tenth street, below Wainut, on Monday morning last. The building was saved, but considerable damage was done to the fixtures and goods in the shop.

A father and mother have been commit ted to prison in this city, for employing their children in the bu-iness of stealing.

THEATRICAL.

Mr. WALLICE, at Boston, had an overflowing and splendid house at his benefit on Monday evening last. He has renewed his engagement is that city for six nights, previous to his return to

ANECDOTE OF BLUCHER

Once when the populace in London has taken his horses out, and drawn his car riage about town, they got tired, and left the General in the lurch in Oxford-street. He was obliged to get home in a backney coach; and next day hit upon an expedieat to prevent the recurrence of a similar accident .- " Dam, dey shall not do me so agen," replied he, and ordered the traces to be nailed to the pole! One of his female levees at St James' had outlasted his patience, and he bid his attendant admit no more company. Still, however, some ladies would press up stairs; but the faithful chamberlain fronted them and pushed them down, exclaiming, " No, Miss; no Miss-my master is fatigue-he cannot kiss no more to-day."
